What is the Active Transportation Plan?

- Evolution of the Regional Bikeways Plans
 - Aligns with Ohio
 Department of Transportation planning
 - Keeps our region on the leading edge on Alternative Modes

Active Transportation, Defined

AT Plan FinalDraft6

- Walking
- Moving by means of a mobility device
- Bicycling

For reaching destinations and/or for accessing transit.

The Miami Valley's Active Transportation network provides safe and equitable walking, biking and transit connections which enhance access to opportunity, well-being, environmental benefits, and quality of life for all.

Goals related to:

Opportunity and Job Access	Reduced Injuries and Deaths, Improved Health
Increased Mode Share for Biking,	Address disparities in Active
Walking and Transit	Transportation Access

Building on Past Bikeways Planning

- Recommended network of regional bike routes
 - Projects, cost estimates
- Level of Traffic Stress analysis
 - Updated based on Ohio Dept. of Transportation
 whitepaper

Network Development Approach

- Regional network remains organizing focus
 - Miami Valley Trails
- Regional Complete
 Streets Policy
 - Local policies are important, too

Inclusion of Pedestrian Mode

- Walking is a part of every trip
- Inclusion of people with disabilities
- Critical infrastructure for accessing public transit

New Data – Regional Sidewalks

- Transit use expands the utility of walking and biking
- Transit systems/routes as walking/biking destinations
- Project scoring emphasized transit access and bike-and-pedestrian infrastructure
