Outstanding Attendance Again During MVRPC GIS Training at Wright State University

GIS Training on May 23, 2018 at Wright State University

MVRPC hosted its fourth Geographic Information System (GIS) training on Wednesday, May 23, 2018 at Wright State University's GIS Lab. A total of 15 attendees from our member organizations attended the training and learned about ArcGIS Desktop software.

Intended for first time GIS users, MVRPC staff members served as instructors and each participant had a hands-on learning opportunity to interact, analyze, and create custom maps using the ArcGIS software. For more information about MVRPC's GIS program, visit our website at

Website Addition: Miami Valley Sustainability Web page

The Miami Valley Regional Planning Commission has added a new Sustainability Resources page to our web site. Covering a wide range of topics, the page seeks to capture the best current ideas for communities and Regions to become more sustainable. From pervious pavements to electric vehicle charging, you'll find it on the Sustainability Resources page. The page is designed to also facilitate dialogue. Under each topic is a link for communities and residents to submit additional resource links to share with the Region. We are particularly interested in your local projects and initiatives; so, please brag about what your community has been doing. MVRPC staff is committed to keeping the content on this page fresh and with your help, we'll all participate in the Regional Sustainability conversation.

Two Employees and Three Co-ops Begin their MVRPC Careers in May

In what is quite rare for the agency, five new employees began working this month. Ms. Elizabeth Whitaker is a new, full time Senior Planner in the Regional Planning department. Elizabeth is returning back to the Miami Valley from 13 years in Dallas, TX while working for North Central Texas Council of Governments and at a consulting firm in New Zealand. Ms. Teresa Wise is the new Assistant to the Executive Director. Teresa is from Xenia, Ohio and recently moved back to the area from Fort Myers, Florida. Both of these ladies have been working hard to learn more about MVRPC committees, member governments, regional data, planning documents, and projects.

Schauerte (Ball State University) is working with the Sustainable Solutions and Transportation Alternatives department. The agency's office space is sufficiently full this summer.

Also, we have three college interns on staff for the summer. Jennifer Lumpkin (University of Dayton) is working with the Long Range Transportation Planning department; Kayla Kellar (University of Cincinnati) works with the Regional Planning department and Anton
