Appendix A: County Geography

Champaign County

The 430 square-miles that comprise Champaign County is a blend of agricultural and industrial land (Figure 18). The county is made up of 12 townships, six incorporated villages (Christiansburg, Mechanicsburg, Mutual, North Lewisburg, St. Paris, and Woodstock) and one city (Urbana) the county seat. At the time of the 2010 Census, the county had a population of 40,097 and has a population density of 93 people per square mile. Champaign County shares a border with the Columbus area, Central Ohio Region 6. Champaign County is also part of the Logan, Union, and Champaign (LUC) Regional Planning Organization (RPO).

Figure 18: Geographic Area of Champaign County

Source: MVRPC
Clark County

The 403 square-miles that comprise Clark County is a blend of agricultural, developed, and industrial land (Figure 19). The county is made up of 10 townships, 10 incorporated villages (Catawba, Clifton, Donnelsville, Enon, North Hampton, South Charleston, South Vienna, and Tremont City) and 2 cities (New Carlisle and Springfield), Springfield being the county seat. At the time of the 2010 Census, the county had a population of 138,333 and a population density of 343 people per square mile. Clark County shares a border with the Columbus area, Central Ohio Region 6. It is also covered by the Clark County-Springfield Transportation Coordinating Committee (CCSTCC).
Darke County

The 600 square-miles that comprise Darke County is primarily agricultural land (Figure 20). The county is made up of 20 townships, 20 incorporated villages (Ansonia, Arcanum, Bradford, Burkettsville, Castine, Gettysburg, Gordon, Hollansburg, Ithaca, New Madison, New Weston, North Star, Osgood, Palestine, Pitsburg, Rossburg, Union City, Versailles, Wayne Lakes, and Yorkshire) and one city (Greenville) the county seat. At the time of the 2010 Census, the county had a population of 52,959 and a population density of 88 people per square mile. Darke County shares a border with Region 3, the Lima-Allen area and is not covered by a local transportation planning agency.

Figure 20: Geographic Area of Darke County
Source: MVRPC
Greene County

The 416 square-miles that comprise Greene County is a blend of agricultural, developed, and industrial land (Figure 21). The county is made up of 12 townships, five incorporated villages (Bowersville, Cedarville, Jamestown, Spring Valley, and Yellow Springs) and four cities (Beavercreek, Bellbrook, Fairborn, and Xenia) with Xenia being the county seat. At the time of the 2010 Census, the county had a population of 161,573 and a population density of 388 people per square mile. Greene County shares a border with Region 6, the Columbus area, as well as Region 1, the Cincinnati area. Greene County is also a member of the MVRPC Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO).

Figure 21: Geographic Area of Greene County
Source: MVRPC
Logan County

The 467 square-miles that comprise Logan County is a blend of agricultural and industrial land (Figure 22). The county is made up of 17 townships, 12 incorporated villages (Belle Center, De Graff, Huntsville, Lakeview, Quincy, Ridgeway, Rushsylvania, Russells Point, Valley Hi, West Liberty, West Mansfield, and Zanesfield) and one city (Bellefontaine), the county seat. At the time of the 2010 Census, the county had a population of 45,858 and a population density of 98 people per square mile. Logan County shares a border with Region 6, the Columbus Area, as well as Region 3, the Lima-Allen area. The county is also part of the Logan Union Champaign Regional Planning Organization.

Figure 22: Geographic Area of Logan County
Source: MVRPC
Miami County

The 410 square-miles that comprise Miami County is a blend of agricultural, developed, and industrial land (Figure 23). The county is made up of 12 townships, nine incorporated villages (Bradford, Casstown, Covington, Fletcher, Laura, Ludlow Falls, Pleasant Hill, Potsdam, and West Milton) and 3 complete cities (Piqua, Tipp City, and Troy), and the county seat is Troy. At the time of the 2010 Census, the county had a population of 102,506 and a population density of 250 people per square mile. Miami County is the only county in the region that does not share a boundary with another region. The county is also a member of the Miami Valley Regional Planning Commission’s Metropolitan Planning Organization (MVRPC MPO).

Figure 23: Geographic Area of Miami County
Source: MVRPC
Montgomery County

The 464 square-miles that comprise Montgomery County is a blend of agricultural, developed, and industrial land (Figure 24). The county is made up of nine townships, five incorporated villages (Carlisle, Farmersville, New Lebanon, Phillipsburg, and Verona) and 17 cities (Brookville, Centerville, Clayton, Dayton, Englewood, Germantown, Huber Heights, Kettering, Miamisburg, Moraine, Oakwood, Riverside, Springboro, Trotwood, Union, Vandalia, and West Carrollton), the county seat is Dayton. At the time of the 2010 Census, the county had a population of 535,153, making it the fifth most populated county in Ohio and the largest in the region. The population density of the county is 1153 people per square mile. Montgomery County shares a border with Region 1, the Cincinnati area, and is a member of the MVRPC MPO.

Figure 24: Geographic Area of Montgomery County
Source: MVRPC
Preble County

The 426 square-miles that comprise Preble County is primarily agriculture land (Figure 25). The county is made up of 12 townships, 10 incorporated villages (College Corner, Camden, Eldorado, Gratis, Lewisburg, New Paris, Verona, West Alexandria, West Elkton, and West Manchester) and one city (Eaton), the county seat. At the time of the 2010 Census, the county had a population of 42,093 and a population density of 99 people per square mile. Preble County shares a border with Region 1, the Cincinnati area, and is not covered by a local transportation planning agency.

Figure 25: Geographic Area of Preble County
Source: MVRPC
Shelby County

The 410 square-miles that comprise Shelby County is a blend of agriculture and industry providing a stable economy (Figure 26). The county is made up of 14 townships, eight incorporated villages (Anna, Botkins, Fort Loramie, Kettlersville, Lockington, Port Jefferson, Jackson Center and Russia) and one city (Sidney), the county seat. At the time of the 2010 Census, the county had a population of 49,423 and a population density of 121 people per square mile. Shelby County shares a border with Region 3, the Lima-Allen area, and is not covered by a local transportation agency but is a member of the Shelby County Regional Planning Commission.

!Figure 26: Geographic Area of Shelby County

Source: MVRPC